SCAMPS NEWS

by Clint Brooks

Heading into 2014 finds me on the verge of constructing an E-36 free flight model. I have been working with John Oldenkamp on a kitted version of his Joulebox design, and I have completed the layout for a version that will be known as the Joulebox 190. Test parts are being cut as this is written and I'm hoping to have a completed prototype before heading to the Southwest Regional later in January. It's a bit of change from a gum band design and a lot of fun for me to develop. I'm not sure about a kit release date-this will come after testing and refinements in the coming months.

Newsletter input from the club membership is dwindling through the holidays so this issue will be dedicated to catch-up on club contests from November and December of 2013. If you have not renewed your dues for 2014 please use the order form at the end of the newsletter to do so.

December Club contest report

by Bernie Crowe

Wednesday morning dawned cold as a – well you know. At 7:00 am Joe Jones was on the field and Caley Hand was on hand (npi.) The creek was iced over, and the temp was 27 deg with a fair breeze when I got there. Although the Colorado guys would have laughed at us, we were wearing multiple layers and still feeling cold. Heck, I even broke out my scarf, gloves and wooly hat! Pretty soon most of the usual suspects arrived, and we all stood around telling each other how cold it was. The day's events were Gollywock Mass Launch, OT Small Rubber combined, and 1/2A to C Nostalgia Gas. Kevin Sherman had forgotten there was a contest, and Allan Arnold knew there was a contest, but forgot to bring his plane! Luckily, he redeemed himself by remembering to bring the donuts so all was forgiven.

Caley and Joe each put up a Gollywock test flight amid mutters of “this thing isn't trimmed yet” etc. CD Al Richardson called the participants (both ‘em) to the line for the 8 o'clock “mass” launch, and offered them more time to sort out their planes, but they declined. Caley had trouble getting a lump of clay to stick to the nose of her'Wock, and resorted to wrapping an arbitrary length of lead tape around the nose and flying without checking it. Neither she nor Joe were packing in the turns (Joe's had pranged previously at high turns, and Caley said her motor was from 1836, or something) so the climb-outs were underwhelming, at best. Joe's was down in 54 seconds and Caley's went on to win in 85 seconds.

Meanwhile, the rugged gas fliers were huddled around little cardboard boxes full of technological wizardry (GPS devices) and said that was the reason they hadn't even started a motor yet (yeah, sure.) Joe and Caley got more daring with their motors and packed on a few more turns, and repeated the “mass” launch unofficially. Caley won again, and Joe's prop was in two pieces when he picked it up so he was through with that plane. Al Richardson got out his “Sparky” and the test flight looked OK, so he made an official in the OT Small Rubber event. He was down in 79 seconds, to watch Caley put up a flight with her now-trimmed Gollywock. Her plane caught some lift and was good for a max. She put up two more for a 157 and another max to win the second rubber event handily. Nice flying Caley!

Eventually, embarrassment got the better of the gas fliers and the sound of IC engines was finally heard on the field. The sun was out now and the field was warming up rapidly, with pretty good lift around. Al Richardson was first out of the blocks with his Zeek for a 142, but he had a family function to go to so didn't fly another. Phil Ronney dropped his first flight with his Ramrod, scoring a 162, but then maxed out; Ray Peel maxed his first flight but then dropped the next two with a newish Lucky Lindy. Jeff Carman (Texan) and Kevin Sherman (Spacer) went head-to-head and maxed the first three rounds easily. Cutting the motor run down to 9 seconds for VTO launches, they then went for their fly off flights. Jeff dropped his at 147, while Kevin maxed again. Just to put icing on the cake, Kevin went for a 5th flight and maxed that one too for a resounding win.

Kevin Sherman let his Spacer take to the cold December skies-didn't appear Kevin was suffering the chill!

Miscellanea.....

Hal Wightman has sent along a few shots of his model building workspace while he visits family in Pennsylvania. I think it's too quaint and cozy-there is far too little balsa dust settled on everything for this to be real! He must be fastidious about keeping the sanding dust down or does it outside-my hat is off to you Hal. It is a nice little workspace though and I bet some happy moments are spent in that corner.

I remember the first time I went to the SCAMPS meeting at the Sherman's house and we were all in the workshop area. Not a speck of dust anywhere-how do you guys do it? Anyway, if y'all want to share images of your workshop area please send to me. It all ends up as a four foot square area you stand in, right?

Hal Wightman's Pennsylvania based satellite work area-that's the Riser Rider on the board right now
